A Message from Cece

As we celebrate Resource Center's 40th anniversary, I invite you to reflect on the progress we've made. Thanks to medical advancements, education, and advocacy from the LGBTQIA+ community, persons living with HIV can lead long, healthy lives. President Biden's recent Respect for Marriage Act adds protections for our hard-earned right to legal marriage. And with Gen Z on the rise, more young people have the courage to come out — a full 20% of this generation identify as LGBTQIA+.

In 2022, we brought back our popular in-person events, including Gaybingo and Toast to Life. We hosted our inaugural Pride Celebration, a block party with family-friendly activities, food trucks and an all-star lineup of local entertainers. After two years of not gathering due to the risk of COVID-19, it was a welcome change that brought deeper connections to one another and a renewed commitment to building a better future.

The pandemic gave us an opportunity to take a closer look at our community services, and I'm delighted to announce our new Family and Community Empowerment Services, called FaCES. It includes social, supportive and skill-building opportunities with the goal of collectively strengthening the DFW queer community and helping individuals and families become more resilient.

We also directly supported thousands of people with our LGBTQIA+ health services, including HIV/STI testing and PrEP/PEP prescriptions. PEP — a post-exposure prophylaxis that prevents HIV infection — was added to our services in 2022, providing another treatment option.

As much progress as we've made, we're also facing some devastating legislative actions in 2023. Across the country, over 380 anti-LGBTQIA+ bills were filed, with a focus on eliminating the rights of transgender people. Additionally, Black, Indigenous and People of Color (BIPOC) — and especially queer BIPOC — individuals' rights are under assault. But even with such an unprecedented effort to push us back, Resource Center is determined to keep moving forward as we always have. I am immensely proud of our staff, who serve our clients and communities every day.

As I look to the future, I am energized. Construction has started on our affordable housing for individuals age 55+ that is LGBTQIA+ affirming, thanks to the immense generosity of our capital campaign donors, partners Matthew Southwest and Volunteers of America, and architects Perkins&Will. The FaCES program is rolling out, and the community has responded enthusiastically. Plus, our education team continues to help local workplaces and schools be more inclusive through LGBTQIA+ cultural competency/agility/humility training.

I am often asked how I deal with such turbulent times. Simply put, I believe in the power of our community and the love we share. Each and every one of you makes a difference, and I am immensely grateful for your support. As volunteers, donors and board members, you inspire me with your commitment to creating an equitable world for all LGBTQIA+ people.

I hope you enjoy these stories that illustrate the impact you make through your investment in the Center.

Best regards,

Cece

Volunteer Spotlight: Jrock Ebony

If you know Jrock, you know he loves the Kiki Ballroom scene — in fact, he played a major role in bringing this culture and community to Dallas, thanks to his involvement in Resource Center's United Black Ellument (UBE). He developed his love of the Ballroom scene when he was in the military during the "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" era.

In 2016, Jrock was still on active duty when he started Vogue Academy in the Center's UBE space. He planted a seed that blossomed fast. By 2019, Jrock and UBE started the Kiki Ball at Marty's LIVE every Wednesday night. Now, he says, there are over 500 people in the scene, and a few of the young men from this group catapulted into the HBO Legendary competition, which makes Jrock proud.

"Ballroom is a culture, and it's a tribe," says Jrock. "It's a place where you can come and be who you are, and you are celebrated." He notes that Kiki Ball has been there as a support system for many youth going through the coming out process or navigating a gender transition. "You don't have to go down a path of destruction just because you are gay or transgender. You just need people who are mentors. We are a family."

Here at Resource Center, we want to recognize and thank Jrock for his tireless efforts to help LGBTQIA+ youth, and especially Black youth and young adults, find a safe space to have fun and build self-esteem. "It's more than just voguing, walking the runway, and being part of the community — we also know these young people need these resources. Education, financial stability, and knowing your status is part of our mission, along with prevention methods that inform young people that HIV is no longer a death sentence. I volunteer because it is vital to our community — physically, emotionally, and spiritually."

CELEBRATING 40 YEARS of Serving the Community

Dallas is home to one of the largest LGBTQIA+ populations in the country and the largest in Texas. Resource Center serves this community and has a rich history as a trailblazer.

1983

Resource Center was formed under the original name of Foundation for Human Understanding by the leaders of the Dallas Gay Alliance.

Meanwhile, at the corner of Cedar Springs and Throckmorton, William "Bill" H. Nelson, Jr., Terry Tebedo, William Waybourn, and Craig Spaulding opened Crossroads Market and started accepting food for persons living with HIV.

The Nelson-Tebedo Health Clinic, named for Bill Nelson and his partner Terry Tebedo, opened.

Jean Nelson, Bill's mother, at the Nelson-Tebedo Health Clinic ribbon cutting.

1989

After a fire damaged most of the Center's facilities in 1989, the search was on to find a larger home. The Nelson-Tebedo Clinic and Food Pantry remained on Cedar Springs Road, while the rest of the organization moved into the former Metropolitan Community Church site on Reagan Street. It was renamed the John Thomas Community Center after the organization's first executive director.

1985

With the AIDS virus quickly spreading, the Foundation for Human Understanding established the AIDS Resource Center.

Health Matters: Meet Mat

Mat Berger, a native of Saumur, France, moved to Dallas about a decade ago for work. “At the time, I just thought Dallas was all about cowboys and tumbleweed,” he says. As he adjusted to life as a gay man in DFW, he started looking for a welcoming place for his sexual health and testing needs. One day, he walked by Nelson-Tebedo Health Clinic and dropped in. What he didn’t know was that he had just found his home base for whole-person wellness services.

He recalls this first visit, “At the time I had a very heavy French accent, and they were so patient and explained everything in a non-judgmental way. It was awesome.” To this day, Mat continues to use Nelson-Tebedo for his testing needs and PrEP care. “Your health is so important — not only to protect yourself, but also to protect others.”

Mat, feeling isolated during the pandemic, knew his mental health was important. He decided to try Resource Center’s counseling services. He loved this experience, too, saying, “It’s been fantastic talking to a therapist where I can freely talk about having a boyfriend, and they understand right away. It’s so affirming, and you feel so understood and welcomed.”

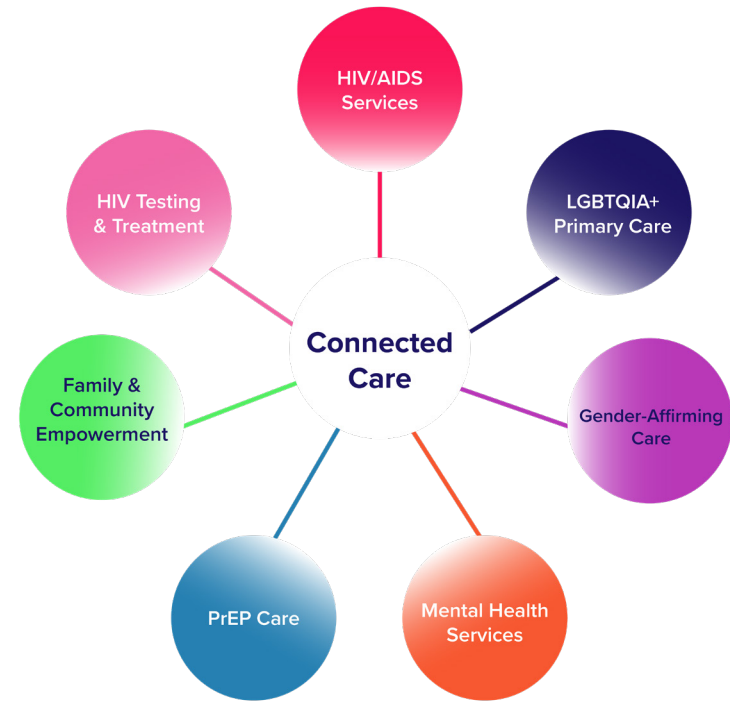

Now, Mat also volunteers at Resource Center. “Helping others is a big part of my values. I work in medical research, and helping people is what drives me. I knew I wanted to be more involved with the LGBTQIA+ community in Dallas.” Resource Center has become Mat’s go-to clinic for health and wellness. “I was so happy with the quality of the care from each provider,” Mat explains. “It’s all really affordable, but the quality of care is still very high — you’re not getting any less for the lower cost.” Thanks to your support, we can offer these life-saving services that help Mat — and thousands of other people in the DFW area.

Connected Care for LGBTQIA+ and HIV Communities

Through a Connected Care model, any person seeking support from Resource Center has access to a robust network of LGBTQIA+ affirming services that address the full spectrum of physical, mental, and emotional needs of our clients.

Introducing FaCES

Resource Center has always evolved to meet the needs of the community. As our youth and adult community programs continue to grow, it became clear there would be strength in unification. In 2022, we combined our youth, family, adult, and older adult programs into one umbrella program called Family and Community Empowerment Services (FaCES). The new structure moved the services under one roof at our Community Center, allowing for shared resources, and creating a greater sense of fellowship and community among, and between, each group. On any given weeknight, you will see people attending unique programs like Queer Sex Ed, Vogue Academy, parent support groups, and game nights, making our Community Center come alive with energy, positivity, and diversity!

Each person comes to Resource Center for a unique reason. What we strive for, with our unified approach, is to seamlessly connect people to what they need and introduce them to a host of other services they may value. For example, parents can drop their kids off at Gender Identity night and see an affirming mental health counselor at the same time. A same-gender-loving man can receive an HIV test and be introduced to FUSE, where he can meet other men who prioritize their health and community in the same way. An adult who is growing to understand their gender identity can participate in counseling, Hormone Replacement Therapy, and social groups for transgender and gender non-conforming people.

Community Services, visit

A new experience offered at our Community Center is meeting with a Community Liaison. This position was created to help people who are unsure of their needs, desires, or goals. Our Community Liaison will listen, support, and introduce a person to our comprehensive suite of services best aligned with their personal journey. This exciting addition to the Resource Center team will ensure that every person who walks through our door can feel safe and affirmed.

The creation of our FaCES department brings enormous value to the community. Each individual program has always been deeply rooted in the unique needs of their specific community — but now there's a network of collaboration, unity, and shared experience that is truly magical. We hope you will join us at one of our programs or events soon!

Building Community

There's always something exciting happening at FaCES! From our LGBTQIA+ Youth Prom, to Queer Camp, to our B.L.A.C.K. History Makers Dinner, and so much more — our social events foster connection and create safe environments for LGBTQIA+ youth, families, young adults, and seniors to support one another and thrive.

Education Opens Hearts

When Cotiviti hired Resource Center to provide LGBTQIA+ 101 training to support their Pride Employee Resource Group (Pride ERG), Nancy Patin, director of organizational effectiveness & change leadership at Cotiviti, confessed that she was a bit nervous. “At first I was apprehensive about it because our company had never done anything like that before, and our company leans a little conservative,” she says. “It felt like a really big deal to me, and I think it was a really big deal.”

In fact, it was a stunning success, thanks to Leslie McMurray, Resource Center’s transgender education & advocacy associate, who presented the program to 200 attendees. Nancy — and the 50 Pride ERG members — were delighted. “Leslie was very patient with us, starting with the terminology and why pronouns matter. She is just a master storyteller,” Nancy says. “There was one quote that really stuck with me: ‘Prejudice rarely survives experience.’ I just thought that was breathtaking.”

Some of the attendees told Nancy that the session was life-changing. “I don’t think I’ll ever be the same. I needed this experience of hearing what Leslie had to say,” said one colleague. Another said, “If I had that information when my child came out, everything would have been different. I would not have felt so alone.”

Since that training session, the Pride ERG at Cotiviti has tripled in members. “It just opened the door for a lot more discussion,” Nancy says. “I think that we just unveiled a part of our community that was pretty quiet before that, and now we have a lot of people who feel like they’re home here.”

Advocacy in Action

Working with our Elected Officials

In 2022, thanks to the support of U.S. Rep. Colin Allred, Resource Center received $1,000,000 in federal earmarks from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for its senior housing development, Oak Lawn Place. We are so grateful to Rep. Allred's allyship to the LGBTQIA+ community.

"I will always work to protect LGBTQ Texans from discrimination and stand up against attacks on civil rights. I hope everyone has a happy, joyous, and reflective Pride Month across North Texas," Allred shared.

Witnessing History: The Respect for Marriage Act

When President Biden signed the Respect for Marriage Act on December 13, 2022, Cece Cox was there to see it. At the invitation of President Biden, she represented Resource Center at this historical event.

Cece shared her thoughts on the momentous occasion. "Change takes time," she reflected. "We move ahead, fall back, move ahead again. But, rest assured, we do move forward...When things seem hard or even impossible, I find comfort in knowing that we are part of a long, large team of angels, lovers and fighters who keep us moving forward. Remember: Love wins."

A History of Support: Meet Gayle Halperin

Since 2016, the James and Gayle Halperin Foundation has been making generous financial gifts to Resource Center. We are so grateful for their ongoing support, and wanted to share the very personal story behind their commitment to Resource Center.

Gayle was a professional dancer in New York City when she met Jim. They moved to Dallas, where she continued her dance career, eventually founding Bruce Wood Dance with Bruce Wood in 2010. Throughout her career, Gayle worked with several artists that were HIV+.

“So many of my friends died of AIDS,” she says, fighting back tears. “Bruce Wood died of AIDS in 2014. The LGBTQ community is very important to me and to us. Whatever we can do to serve that community and improve their quality of life is important.”

Their first gift to Resource Center was made to our capital campaign, which helped us build our Community Center. We appreciate the generous support that Gayle and Jim have given to Resource Center over the years. Gayle adds, “We give because we believe in the organization, and we believe in their ability to run the organization. We just trust Cece and the Board. We trust them implicitly. We trust them to use the money in the best way they need to.”

Gayle explains that she and Jim look at their gifts as an investment. “An investment in the mission and in the future,” she says. “We believe in the importance of supporting families and youth with gender-affirming care. There’s a lot of work to be done, and there’s a lot of support needed in the LGBTQ community.” Thank you so much, Gayle and Jim, for your trust in us.
